11:30–13:00 Panel discussion 3: Domestic and international private business and finance

Private business and finance are important drivers of sustainable growth and development. To deliver on these promises, business activity and investment (both foreign and domestic), need to be dynamic, inclusive, risk-informed and sustainable. Revitalizing private sector development that is fully aligned with sustainable development will be a core task of the fourth International Conference on Financing for Development. This session will help build a new narrative for the role of the private sector in financing sustainable development.

15:00–16:30 Panel discussion 4: International development cooperation

The COVID-19 pandemic, the war in Ukraine and the food, fuel and climate crises are placing unprecedented demands on international development cooperation. The global financing landscape has also changed since the adoption of the Addis Ababa Action Agenda, making it increasingly complex to navigate, and calling for urgent action to boost international development cooperation and strengthen its effectiveness. This session will consider what international development cooperation should look like to support sustainable development and ensure the achievement of the Sustainable Development Goals. The discussion will touch on a broad range of issues and actors, including multilateral development bank reform, strengthening the public development bank system and official development assistance in the face of multiple global crises.
