WHAT IS SPECIAL ACCREDITATION?

It's an opportunity for civil society organizations not in consultative status with UN ECOSOC to apply for ad hoc accreditation to participate in a United Nations High-level event or conference.

Organizations must complete the application for each meeting or conference.

You will need:

- Expression of Interest Letter
  - A signed letter on official letterhead from the Head of your organization requesting special accreditation for the entity to the conference, with a brief explanation of the organization's mission.
- Proof of Legal Status
  - An official government-issued document providing proof of legal status in the country where your organization is headquartered.
- Activity Report
  - A list of recent activities aligned with the conference theme that your organization has undertaken.

Questions? Email: ngls@un.org

WHAT HAPPENS NEXT?

The Non-Governmental Liaison Service (NGLS) reviews your application

NGLS sends the list of eligible organizations to the Office of the President of the General Assembly (OPGA)

OPGA circulates the list of organizations to UN Member States for approval or objection

NGLS informs the applicants of their status. If approved, nominated stakeholders will be able to register
